

Who We Are

Red Cedar Conservation Farmers (RCCF) is a group of farmers in Dunn and Chippewa Counties. We formed this farmer-led watershed group to provide farmer to farmer learning opportunities and encourage the use of sustainable farming practices like cover crops, no-till and more. We established in January of 2019.

What We Do?

RCCF applies for grant money from the Department of Agriculture, Trade, and Consumer Protection (DATCP) through our County Facilitator each year. This grant money allows us to offer incentives to farmers for completing certain practices, education events, field days and on-farm trials.

What We've Accomplished So Far

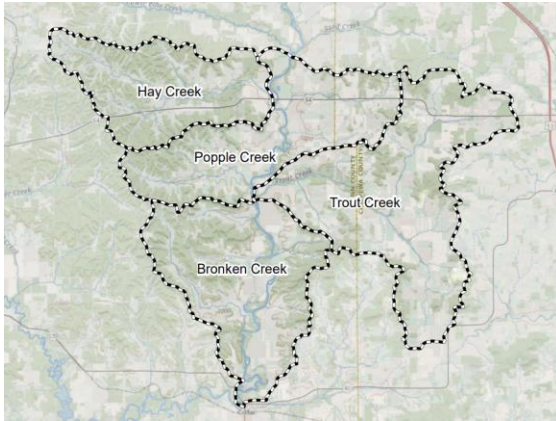

NO TILL SOYBEANS

- OVER 30 MEMBERS
- OVER 12,000 ACRES NO TILL
- OVER 5,000 ACRES COVER CROPS
- OVER 1,000 ACRES PLANTED GREEN
- OVER 1,000 SOIL SAMPLES COLLECTED
- OVER 8,000 FEET GRASSED WATERWAYS INSTALLED
- AND MUCH MORE!

Red Cedar Conservation Farmers

Who Can Participate?

The area our group covers is land that flows into Popple, Bronken, Trout, Eddies, Beaver and Hay Creek in North Eastern Dunn County and part of Chippewa County, Wisconsin.

Any farm in this area can participate in this group.

TO BE ELIGIBLE FOR INCENTIVES A FARM MUST HAVE PRODUCED AT LEAST $6,000 IN GROSS REVENUES DURING THE TAXABLE YEAR OR A TOTAL OF AT LEAST $18,000 DURING THE PRECEDING THREE YEARS.

Our Goals

We work to improve soil health and water quality while maintaining production by:

- Learning from each other
- Incentivizing practices
- Hosting events for our members and the community
- Improving farm profitability
- Conducting trails and demonstrations
- Conducting surface and well water sampling

Our Meetings

Our meetings are informal and cover a wide range of topics. We encourage open discussion about personal successes and challenges with farming.

How Can You Learn More?

Attend a meeting, field day or give our facilitator a call.

Our facilitator is the Dunn County Land and Water Conservation Division.

Contact Tina Barone to learn more.

Phone: 715-231-6533

Email:
tbarone@co.dunn.wi.us